

Race War Rages for Hours After Courthouse Outbreak; Two Whites Dead Unknown

COUNTLESS FROM PALE COLOR
RESCUED WHO ATTEMPTED TO DISPERSE THEM.

Motor Cars Volunteered

Owners of automobiles volunteered the service of their cars to those from whom they had been separated. Many of these were placed at disposal of the police. In many cases prominent business and professional men came at the wheel and piloted the second men about the city. The drivers were sent out to prevent any hostile attack in any quarter of the city with spoke by them abstaining from foods.

Two of the negroes wounded in the first battle who "fought it out" to the last were taken to the hospital. They were admitted to the hospital after being brought to the hospital by negroes who had been driven overboard and others were wounded in racial struggle they could escape. The fight continued northward along Main street and then eastward along Boston and Harrison streets. They pursued those for almost an hour when a crowd of armed whites attacked them, and drove them across the Frisco tracks. There the negroes made their stand and a mob estimated at 5,000 gathered behind the train building south of the tracks while others were held off. The white drivers were changed before their departure, but no report of fatalities were reported to the police before 1 o'clock.

The Mob Separates

About 10:30 o'clock the mob separated; those at the south of the courthouse running east to Main street and then north. At this time, the second half, numbering about 100 men, was gathered at the west entrance and the mob was separated for a short while, several of the men fired revolver into the air. This was the signal for general firing at Sixth street and Boulder ave.

At this time a crowd of negroes came north on Boulder avenue and in an exchange of shots a white man and one negro were wounded. Both were taken to the hospital.

The half of the mob which went east on Sixth street went slowly north on Main street, and a group of four who had gone north in the alley pursued an armed negro north.

In an exchange of shots at the alley between Main and Boulder ave. Fourth street a white man was wounded and left to the street. Another negro was a few minutes later found dead in the same place. The negroes here the first negro tell. The mob did not apparently know of the presence of the second negro who it is believed was killed by stray shot fired at the wounded negro.

Fighting Is Hot

One white and one negro were shot at the beginning of the fight at the courthouse when hundreds of shots were fired in the first minute of three minutes. Andy Brown, negro, Highline addition, received slight flesh wounds by one of the first shots fired. According to Brown, he had promised to take the negro who were under his leadership home when some person in the crowd shot him. Immediately after words from commanding general and an unidentified white man was badly wounded by a negro said to be Johnny Cole. Deputy Sheriff McLean tried to disperse a threatening crowd of negroes that had gathered on the west side of the courthouse. Cole is alleged to have raised his gun and tried to shoot the deputy sheriff. McLean quickly turned and the bullet is supposed to have been the one which hit the white man.

When the mob formed shortly after 10 o'clock Sheriff McCullough, who had obtained rumors of the threatened lynching, stationed six guards in the courthouse just opposite the courthouse and the sheriff himself, with ten short counts commissioners-elect, stationed themselves on the first floor and awaited the coming of the mob. Three men without masks entered the building and the sheriff without warning told them to open the conversation, but immediately told them to get back to the crowd and dinner under penalty of death. The men left and

Man Hit by Negro's Car

When L. C. Blenkford of West Tulsa, 25, car dispatcher for the Frisco, was crossing Main street at the intersection, a passing car, loaded with blocks, struck him, causing simple the loss of the right hand, though both legs were broken.

Maurice Palmer of West Tulsa, 27, manager of the Farmers State Bank, was struck in the head by a bullet when he was waiting for a train to pass at the Frisco tracks and Main street, and wounded in the left shoulder.

Ed Aiston, installer for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, was standing on the south side of Longfellow when a shot was fired into his body. He fell to the ground and left, as far as he knew, without a blow or shout or scream.

E. F. Hodges Shot

Curd Miller, office boy at the First National bank, was hit in the head during the first shooting fray at the courthouse. Young Miller, who is 17 years old, was standing in the crowd when he was struck by a stray bullet. He heard a sharp crack realizing that it struck him until he felt blood trickling down his neck. He drove at once to the Tulsa hospital, was seen by attendants who came quickly down the steps and soon had the sight of a white man dressed in a suit and tie. A woman, a woman companion with him and was staring home after attending the last show at the Orpheum theater. Curry did not think that the shot was aimed at him directly, but may have been fired by the negroes at persons in fire wildly. Curry was eating well about midnight.

Taxi Driver Uncounted.
Taxi drivers seemed to ride screws through the fray. A driver for the Yellow Cab medallion line said that the negroes did not fire on the taxi even in the danger zone, though several bullets whizzed previously.

Four Negroes Chased.
Four negroes said to be hiding in the woods on a vacant lot at Archer and Eason were the object of pursuit by one group of men. About midnight the white men stationed themselves by the viaduct crossing on North Denver and deflected all cars headed north while waiting for some of their number to obtain more guns and ammunition car.

Several cars of negroes were seen driving furiously on residence drives out from the main thoroughfares late as midnight. A dash along Main street at midnight revealed the whites in undisputed possession, men striding along the street in pairs and small groups carrying guns and some ten cars in the course of a few blocks were bursting with riflemen.

Sapulpa City Clerk Shot.
While A. B. Stick, city clerk of Sapulpa, stood on the steps of the Cincinnati entrance to Hotel Tulsa watching the armed crowds, a stray shot hit his back to the left, inflicting what physicians at the Oklahoma hospital say may prove to be a fatal injury. At 1:30 another shot was fired at him in a second section and messages had been sent to his people in Sapulpa telling of the shooting. Stick is 29 years old.

Dr. T. Prunkard, 34, another Sapulpa man conductor for the Frisco, was resting in a caboose at Madison and the Frisco tracks. It was reported when a shot fired by a negro hit him wild, hitting the conductor. He was wounded in the right shoulder, ribs and forehead.

A negro fired at Lee Fisher, 31, East First, a truck driver,

There Is Only One Phonograph In the World That Can

Truthfully Equip Your Home With the Living Voices of the World's Greatest Artists.

You no doubt have read a great many claims from needle type talking machine dealers endorsing the realism of their machines. But mark this! There is only one phonograph in the world that will positively prove the rendition of their instrument—and that is the New Edison. The final proof of superiority is that the ear should be unable to distinguish Mr. Edison's Re-Creations from the living tone. Repeatedly, before 800,000 people, the New Edison has passed this test. No other has yet dared it.
